Singapore Nutrition and Dietetics Association (SNDA)’s role in the “War on Diabetes in Singapore: A multi-Pronged and Whole-of-Society Approach Towards Winning”

Diabetes is a serious health problem in Singapore affecting 1 out 9 Singaporeans. Health Minister of Singapore, Mr Gan Kim Yong declared the War on Diabetes and a new task force was set up in 2016. The key strategic thrusts involved healthy living, better disease management, early detection and intervention, public education and stakeholder engagement.

SNDA is actively involved in the initiatives of two strategic thrusts: healthy living and public education respectively. Our President, Ms Izabela Kerner and Vice President, Dr Kalpana Bhaskaran were invited, to a dialogue session on measures to reduce sugar intake from pre-packaged sugar-sweetened beverage in January 2019. This session was held with the Minister of State and involved government agencies such as Ministry of Health (MOH), Health Promotion Board (HPB), and other relevant stakeholders.

Dr Kalpana Bhaskaran, Vice President of SNDA, speaking on the association’s role in Winning the War on Diabetes at The Asian Congress of Nutrition, Bali, Indonesia (3-7th August 2019).

The SNDA Metabolic Syndrome Interest Group Members gathered at one of the public forums organised by Diabetes Society of Singapore to educate the public on sugar content in local beverages.

Furthermore, SNDA members have been invited to a working group to offer expert advice with regards to dietary management of Diabetes.

One of the activities includes the development of the National Diabetes Reference Material. This is a resource for people with prediabetes and type 2 diabetes respectively. Our members offered expert advice on the dietary management of Diabetes for this resource.

Professional Development Opportunities

Our Continuing Education team organized a variety of educational opportunities and hands-on workshops to meet our member’s professional learning needs.

Dietary Management of IBS/Functional Disorder 4th May 2019

Our Members were privileged to host the Monash FODMAPS Team from Australia, Consultant Gastroenterologist, Clinical Psychologist and a Local Singapore Dietitian to conduct an exciting participatory workshop focused on management of individuals with IBS/Functional Disorders. It is a challenge to follow a FODMAP diet in Singapore given the wide variety of foods and ingredients used in the local cuisine. To broaden the knowledge, our members developed a local list of the top eating tips on how to follow a FODMAP diet whilst living or visiting Singapore.

Exercise is Medicine (EIMS) Exercise Prescription Course 18th & 25th May 2019

Our Members took on the challenge to acquire new knowledge and expand their ability to support patients as they journey towards a healthy lifestyle through the EIMS Course. Held as a 2-day workshop, “Exercise is Medicine Singapore” is a programme aimed to make physical activity and exercise a standard part of preventing and treating diseases.

It draws its principles from the “Exercise is Medicine” global initiative by the American College of Sports Medicine (ACSM). Individuals who have successfully completed the course are now qualified to prescribe exercise safely and effectively counsel, implement and lead exercise programmes for patient in collaboration with the patient’s physician.

SNDA will continue to uphold the professional standards of the Nutrition and Dietetics community. In addition, we will work closely with relevant stakeholders to support public health promotion, and education efforts to activate our community in making positive food choices.

Encomiums for Marsha Sharp - from fellow ICDA directors

Carole Middleton -
I have known Marsha for all the time I have been involved in ICDA, as she was already on the Board of Directors when I joined in 2004.
Marsha has contributed enormously to the profession over the years, striving to create a global network of Dietitian-Nutritionists. She was instrumental in the creation of ICDA in its current form and has worked tirelessly to raise the profile of the organisation, dietetics and Dietitian-Nutritionists. Under her leadership ICDA has become the constituted, professionally organised body which it is today.

Since taking over as Secretary to the Board of Directors I have realised how much behind the scenes work is needed to keep ICDA functioning and have the greatest admiration and respect for Marsha undertaking that role formally for 16 years alongside her day job, and informally for a number of years before that, when the main function of ICDA was to oversee the International Congress of Dietetics every 4 years.

I think Marsha has earned her retirement and I wish her every happiness and success in her next ventures.

PNDS March Nutrition Month Activities:

Every year in March, Pakistan Nutrition and Dietetic Society (PNDS) organize Nutrition Month with various activities to provide nutrition related information and guidance to the public. This year’s theme which was “Food for Health”, focused on public awareness activities in relation to nutrition and health promotion messages to the public, through a media press conference and walk at Press Club. PNDS members participated in the campaign with great enthusiasm by organizing various public awareness activities during the month of March at all PNDS chapters in Islamabad, Lahore and Faisalabad.

A Press conference was organized on 21st March by PNDS at Press Club Karachi where PNDS spokes persons Dr. Nilofer F.Safdar, Fayza Khan, Rabia Anwer, Mozamila Mughat, Saima Rasheed and Shabnum Razi highlighted the role of nutrition in health and disease. Nutrition and dietetic professionals gathered at Karachi press club carrying slogans to promote healthy eating and physical activity.
Another goal, was to raise awareness and draw attention of government to assist in establishment of a National Nutrition and Dietetic Council which will help the government in making policy, standardize and regulate nutrition and dietetic education programs. Some of the agenda points were:

- Media should ensure that nutrition advice is given only by qualified, registered and trained nutritionists/dietitians and not by non-technical persons that is often incorrect and misleading general public.
- Nutrition and dietetic qualified professionals should be employed to teach nutrition and dietetic programs running in the country instead of non-technical personnel or people from other disciplines.
- Positions for dietitians and nutritionists should be created in government hospitals for grade 17 or equivalent, and 17 grade in private hospitals.
- Number of dietitians per hospital or per department of any institution/organization should be increased based on the needs.

During the month of March various public awareness sessions and panel discussion to address food related controversies focusing on, Oils, Milk, broiler chicken and MSG were conducted which was attended by PNDS members as well as general public.

News from Swiss Association of Registered Dietitians (SVDE ASDD)

A survey of dietitians in Switzerland.

In 2017 Andrea Mahlstein and Esther Weishaupt conducted a survey of dietitians in Switzerland. The work entitled ‘occupational statistics on dietitians in Switzerland – work settings, job conditions, education and professional development of dietitians as well as their assessment of the profession’s attractiveness’ was published at the end of 2018. Currently the report has been published in English. Below is a short summary of the work, the complete article can be found under the following link: http://www.svde-asdd.ch/ernaehrungsberatung-als-beruf/

Introduction: With 1440 qualified dietetics professionals from 1984 to 2017 [1], dietitians are one of the smaller professional groups in the Swiss healthcare system. Currently there are about 75 qualifications per year [1]. Since 2004 and 2007 respectively (French-speaking/ German-speaking Switzerland), training as a dietitian has been offered at Bachelor of Science level; previously it was a three-year vocational training course at higher vocational school level. In general, little research has been conducted on the dietetic professional group in Switzerland - a last survey was conducted in 2010 [2]. For the development of the profession it is indispensable to have a well-founded and up-to-date database.

Method: From 23.06. - 06.08.2017 a survey was carried out via online questionnaire with the aim of asking all legally recognized dietitians in Switzerland about their work, education and professional development as well as their assessment of their profession's attractiveness. The data was processed, cleaned and evaluated descriptively and analytically with SPSS statistical software.

Results: 756 of 1470 contacted dietitians took part in the survey. 705 participants (95.3%) were female, 35 (4.7%) male. 16 persons did not provide any information on gender. On average, dietitians in Switzerland are 40±10.7 years old and have been working in the profession for 15.3±11.4 years. Approximately one third of the participants (29.9%) have a diploma at higher vocational school level as their highest qualification, about two thirds (59.7%) have at least a Bachelor’s degree. 46 persons (6.1%) indicate having completed a Master of Science (MSc) or Master of Arts (MA). Three persons (0.4%) have a doctorate.

Three quarters (74.4%) of the participating dietitians work exclusively in one job. 25.5% of working dietitians have two or more positions. Of the 870 positions filled by study participants, 651 positions (74.8%) were categorized as employed and 219 positions (25.2%) as self-employed. "Acute hospitals" and "dietetic practices" were the most prevalent places of work, whilst retirement- and nursing homes or insurance companies saw few active dietitians.
Fig. 2: Number of positions per work setting across all employments (n=869)

79.3% of the participants (498 out of 628) who gave information on their level of dietetic employment work 50 - 100%, whilst 20.7% (130 out of 628) work below 50%. The average employment rate is highest in the 21 - 30 years age category (the newcomers to the profession) at 85%.

In the evaluation of the profession’s attractiveness, elements that were rated positively included "diverse and varied work", "compatibility of work and private life", "independent way of working" and the "opportunity to contribute one's technical skills as well as one's own ideas and visions in daily work-life".

Elements that tended to be rated negatively were the "profession's visibility", "sufficient job opportunities", "opportunities for promotion and further development" and "appropriate salary".

The average gross annual salary for a dietitian in Switzerland is CHF 82,270. The average gross annual salary for employees in various work settings ranges from CHF 71,540 to CHF 110,500 in educational institutions.

Conclusion: The survey shows that dietitians are active in a broad range of work environments. The principal settings remain the hospital and the dietetic practice, whilst the retirement- and nursing homes settings show scope for expansion. The number of dietitians with an MSc/ Ma or doctorate remains very low in Switzerland. It is essential to educate more dietitians to MSc or doctorate level for the profession’s development. Furthermore, access to up-to-date wage data is important for professional development, to enable a stronger position in salary negotiations.

IAAND has over 1200 members/supporters in 84 different countries, with its mission and vision to be member-focused, collaborative and engage dietitians and members in diverse populations around the world.
One of the many programs within IAAND is the Kids Eat Right International (KERI) campaign. Launched in 2013, KERI supports public education and programs that address the health concern of overweight and obesity among many of the world’s children. Through dissemination of resources, campaign volunteers lead prevention efforts within their countries and raise awareness among national populations about the importance of quality nutrition. Consistent with the Kids Eat Right (KER) national campaign (a joint effort of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics and its Foundation), the international campaign efforts aim to:

- educate key audiences about the necessity of a quality diet and consequences of poor nutrition
- advocate for quality nutrition to promote growth and development
- demonstrate the food and nutrition expertise of registered dietitian nutritionists through educational programming and leadership

Each year IAAND targets different regions of the world. News from Taiwan Dietitian Association

The aggravating ageing population is a common global phenomenon. Taiwan has the second fastest growing aging population in the world. Long term care health system is one of the most important welfare policies of the Taiwan government. In response to the aging population, the extension of Healthy Life Expectancy (HALE) is the main goal of the policy and improving nutrition status is an extremely crucial step. In order to reach the goal, Taiwan launched the community nutrition education counselling program in 2017, and has selected three cities for test runs.

Taiwan Dietitian Association is responsible for the program development and implementation. In 2017, they have accomplished the following:

1. Established community nutrition promotion centres in three cities.
2. Handled community RD education and training courses to enhance core competence.
3. Completed the “Community Nutrition Promotion Handbook” and developed assessment indicators to analyse the program effectiveness.

Due to the excellent response from the community, Taiwan Dietitian Association was assigned to continue hosting, promoting and expanding the national program for 2018 and 2019. Within these two years, they have:

1. Established a community nutrition promotion centre in each county and city to create a friendly and healthy eating environment for the community.
2. Handled advanced education and training courses for community dietitians and continuously improving core competencies and skills.
3. Completed the “Handbook for the Maintenance of Nutritional Care in Disability Community” and prepared a “Handbook for Nutritional Care for Delayed Disability Community” according to the training targets, and conducted on-the-spot assessment, counselling and evaluation.

In addition to developing the care model, ensured consistent service quality and resource development.
RD (at the left) designed board games to play with residents in the community.

we also have also, established a preventive and delayed disability care service system for the local population’s nutritional needs, and lead the community to work together for the neighbourhood residents and for the elderly. Together, we have worked hard for a everyone’s healthy life.

News from Congress of the Portuguese Council of Nutritionists

As diet is one of the determinants with the greatest impact on health, the Portuguese Council of Nutritionists is committed to define and clarify about the most appropriate policies and practices from a scientific and technical perspective, respecting the right of all citizens to quality nutrition.
In March 2019, the Portuguese Council of Nutritionists held its second Congress with the theme “Nutrition - a global vision”. Some of the most reputed national and international experts attended and contributed to such a decisive discussion. The scientific program included 5 courses, 5 meetings, 6 panels, 3 conferences, 5 oral communications and an exhibition of 26 scientific posters. 26 national speakers and 7 international speakers discussed issues such as sustainable dietary standards, promotion of healthy environments, nutrition and health gains, challenges for the millennium in clinical nutrition, and challenges of the nutritionists around the world.

Below we present some of the subjects that were discussed in this event:

- Sustainable diets aim to address the growing health and environmental concerns that are related to food production and consumption. As expected, topics such as the Mediterranean diet, the Nordic diets and the food and ecological footprint were addressed.
- We know that food choices have a big impact on policy decisions. The relationships of the food industry with health professionals, the possible conflicts of interest that may exist and current economic impact of the Nutritionists’ practices in different settings have been widely debated.
- Portugal is currently witnessing a profound change in its demographic and epidemiological profile, and this brings major challenges to society and the health system. The life expectancy of the Portuguese currently exceeds eighty years. Living longer and better is the big challenge. In this context, food must be a public health ally, social inequalities and the right to adequate food should be considered, and the role of governments in economic nutrition policies is crucial.

- Admittedly, proper nutrition plays an important role in health protection and diet therapy, applied and monitored by nutritionists, has a potential positive impact on the health of individuals. The growing information about nutrition knowledge in scientific or non-scientific outlets, as well as the easy access of the public to this information, much of which without proper scientific validity, pushes nutritionists to refine and support their professional practice by the best current evidence. These will be some of the millennium challenges for clinical nutrition.
- Obesity and overweight continue to persist in Portugal. Its origin depends on multiple factors and the environmental factor is extremely relevant. We observed changing environments, excessive advertising to nutritionally unbalanced products and widespread availability of nutritionally unbalanced products in relation to healthy products. The promotion of salutogenic environments should be a priority.

Faced with the increase of tourism in Portugal, there has been a recent flow of tourists seeking medical treatment or health care for several reasons. Nutritionists should be a part of this market segment, contributing for the creation of added value in the sector.

The major challenges facing nutrition and the nutritionists were also discussed, ending with a panel entitled “Challenges of the Nutritionists Around the World”, which featured representatives from Spain, Portugal, the United Kingdom and the United States of America. This panel was intended to promote debate among representatives of various global professional associations of nutritionists, focusing on local regulatory models, challenges and opportunities for practitioners from the countries represented. Speakers were invited to briefly describe the organization and professional regulation of nutritionists in their countries, focusing presentations on the challenges and opportunities they currently face.

The congress began with an inaugural session that brought together a group of Portuguese nutritionists that work around the world, and culminated with the Young Nutritionist Award, which aims to unveil talents, to motivate the entrepreneurial and innovative spirit in the area of nutrition, to boost and promote nutrition research, to promote the dissemination of good professional practices in nutrition, and invest in young nutritionists who seek to innovate in solving the challenges of Portuguese society.

This Congress, which had 625 participants, demonstrated the strength of nutritionists as a relevant profession in today’s society, and contributed to reinforce the need of establishing evidence-based health policy measures focusing on food and nutrition.

News from Norwegian Association of Clinical Dietitians

The first national celebration of Norwegian Registered Dietitians! Authorised clinical dietitians is a rapidly growing group of a fairly new profession in the Norwegian Health Care System (NHCS), and in private industry. The Norwegian Association of Clinical Dietitians affiliated with The Norwegian Association of Researchers has almost reached 600 members, which is a great increase from 20/25 members in the mid-80's.

In September 2019 it was about time we put the spotlight on our profession and the great work our members are doing for the inhabitants of our country. With the goal to inspire, celebrate and show the Norwegian people what we do, we thought it was about time to introduce a “National day for clinical dietitians”. With great effort from the board and our members, in both the smaller and larger parts of our country, we held our first celebration the 4th of September 2019.

Numerous pictures, stands, blogg-posts and “insta-take-overs” coloured the Internet, with special emphasize on Social Media. The diversity of our work truly came out, and several dietitians used the opportunity to spread information about the importance of good and healthy nutrition. The National Associations for Dietetics in our neighbouring Nordic Countries forwarded their kind greetings, and The British Dietetic Association (BDA) was kind enough to let us translate some of their factsheets to Norwegian. This was very well received as new and fresh input to our work – thank you! All the way from Australia KEFF even got a special offer to follow the Monash University’s Low-FODMAP online course, which we chose to offer as a gift to our members on our National day for clinical dietitians.
We can’t wait for next year and hope that our members, and all of you out there, remember to celebrate the great work that is being done, and continue to inspire both each other, decision makers, politicians, other health profession and also, the inhabitants of our countries! Happy dietitians (day)!

Secretary’s Report

As reported elsewhere in this Newsletter, the Chair of the Board of Directors is now Giuseppe Russolillo from Spain and also on the Board we have Sheela Krishnaswamy from India, Judith Rodriguez from the USA, Elizabeth Solis Perez from Mexico, Tatsushi Komatsu from Japan, Carole Middleton from the UK and we welcome Corinne Eisenbraun from Canada to fill the vacancy until the end of this term.

Since the last annual meeting we have approved 2 new members: The Association of Nutritionist-Dietitians of Benin and at the Board meeting in September, The Haitian Association of Dietitians - Nutritionists. There are now 52 members of ICDA representing around 200,000 Dietitian-Nutritionists around the world.

The Board has approved the change in the name of this newsletter to “Dietetics and Nutrition around the World”, to reflect changes being made by ICDA members.

ICDA supported the FAO campaign of World Food Day on October 16 and would encourage all members to participate in this and World Water Day in March, each year.

In the last Newsletter, the Board reported on a snapshot survey of members, which has given an insight into the growing use of social media and information technology in the practice of Dietitian-Nutritionists and will contribute to the report on the Education and Work of Dietitian-Nutritionists around the World, which will be presented at the International Congress of Dietetics 2020 (ICD2020). I would like to thank those members who contributed to the survey, which is now published on the website.

In addition to the plenary lecture at ICD 2020, ICDA will also be holding 4 workshops: Understanding Education Competencies and Assessment; International Accreditation of Dietitian-Nutritionist Education Programs; Conflict of Interest; and Sustainable Food Systems. We are looking forward to meeting as many of you as possible in Cape Town.
ICDA has continued to use a Secretariat at Dietitians of Canada and I would like to thank them for their continued support. I would also like to thank my fellow Board members for their support and look forward to meeting Representatives and members at ICD 2020.

Carole Middleton
Secretary, ICDA Board and British Dietetic Association Member Representative.
